Chapter 356: The Colossal Evolution

Sung Jin-Woo, the True Absolute One, continued to transcend all boundaries, surpassing even the grandest of universal laws. His power surged endlessly, his essence becoming more intertwined with the infinite multiverse. Through this ceaseless evolution, his physical form expanded, reaching a size that rivaled a hundred realms combined.

The Expansion of the Absolute Body

The sheer magnitude of Sung Jin-Woo's physical body was incomprehensible, his very presence reshaping the essence of existence. His form encompassed stars, dimensions, and realms, becoming a colossal entity that could dwarf the fabric of the multiverse itself. His wings, symbols of his divine might, expanded into a staggering 60,000,000 wings, each stretching across dimensions, radiating divine energy that spanned galaxies.

The Compression of Divinity

Understanding the necessity to maintain balance, Sung Jin-Woo decided to compress his vast physical body. Though now the size of a hundred realms, he condensed his form into the size of a single realm, a physical manifestation that could be comprehended by the realms below.

His compressed form radiated an aura of unparalleled might. His wings, though still numbering 60,000,000, folded into intricate patterns of divine artistry, becoming a visible tapestry of his infinite power. Each feather carried the weight of galaxies, shimmering with the brilliance of countless stars.

The New Absolute Form

Now, as a realm-sized entity, Sung Jin-Woo's presence redefined the structure of his domain. The True Absolute One Domain, already the most boundless and vast of all realms, expanded further to accommodate his incomprehensible might.

His throne, which once filled the domain, now adapted to this transformation. It floated in the heart of the realm, surrounded by countless streams of divine energy flowing like rivers of light and shadow. The throne glowed with an aura that reflected his compressed yet boundless essence, signifying his eternal rule.

The Reaction Across Realms

The multiverse trembled as Sung Jin-Woo evolved once more. The skies of every realm glowed with divine radiance, and the very fabric of existence quivered at his transformation.

The Twelve Divine Beings (now eleven) marveled at his incomprehensible power, bowing in reverence from their castles. Cha Hae-In, now ruling over the Umbra Citadel, gazed in awe, her heart filled with pride and devotion.

Gabriel and Michael, leading the celestial hosts in the Absolute Realm Universe, paused their duties momentarily, their wings fluttering with reverence at the surge of Sung Jin-Woo’s divinity.

The Angels, Shadowkins, Dark Apostles, and Dragonkins, scattered across realms, felt the ripple of his power. They sang hymns of praise, their voices uniting in a chorus that echoed through the multiverse.

A New Stage of Divinity

Sung Jin-Woo, now compressed to the size of a single realm, wielded power that surpassed comprehension. His evolution had reached a stage where even the laws of existence bent to his will.

From his throne, he surveyed the multiverse, his gaze penetrating every corner of creation. Though his physical form was now compressed, his influence stretched infinitely, touching every soul, every realm, and every star.

In this state, Sung Jin-Woo was no longer just the True Absolute One; he was the very essence of the multiverse, a living embodiment of creation, destruction, and everything in between.
